The Park—Arbor Day.

If the weather is favorable next Friday morning, the 1st of November, at ten o'clock, the proposed tree-planting, which has heretofore been explained, will take place at Gypsy Hill Park, the property of the city.

The Stonewall Brigade Band will furnish the music for the occasion. The public schools will be present and take part, and it is expected that the citizens generally will do so.

The Committee of the Council, Messrs. W. P. Tams and John McQuaide, will have all the arrangements completed if the weather shall favor the progress of the work. The trees, about fifteen hundred, have been procured, and the holes for setting will be ready. The party furnishing the trees, plant them and guarantee that they will live.

The manner in which all persons disposed to take part is as follows: The trees cost the city 40 cents a-piece, and any person can apply to the committee, who will be on the ground, obtain the kind of tree they prefer, and the location can be chosen, and then it will be planted by the contractor, who is responsible for its life. By buying the tree, the party becomes identified personally with the enterprise, and his tree and number is recorded and will stand there in all time. Of course a person can procure as many trees as may be desired.

It is hoped the weather will be suitable, and that there will be a general turn out of the people.

Hacks will be run at a moderate compensation. There will be no speaking or formal proceedings of any kind.
